About our Speaker:

Dr. Dana A. Liska received her Doctor of Veterinary Medicine from Kansas State University in 1999. Following graduation, she completed a rotating internship in medicine, surgery, and critical care at Mission MedVet in Mission, Kansas. Dr. Liska then practiced general, small animal, veterinary medicine for 4 years in Helena, Montana. In 2004 she began a dermatology residency at the University of Florida College of Veterinary Medicine. After completion of her residency and achieving Diplomate status in the American College of Veterinary Dermatology in 2006 she remained at the University of Florida College of Veterinary Medicine as a clinical instructor of dermatology. She then moved to the Dallas area to join the Animal Dermatology Referral Clinic (ADRC). For nine years she practiced clinical dermatology at ADRC and for five of those years she shared partnership with two other dermatologists. In September of 2016 she left private practice to join Zoetis. Currently, she serves on the board of the American College of Veterinary Dermatology as Treasurer and as co-chair of the North American Veterinary Dermatology Forum. She is certified as both a Level 1 fear free speaker and Human Animal Bond speaker.
